CLOVERPORT, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 28, 1898.

NO. 24.

"I'LL SHOOT," SAID HE, "THE FIRST MAN WHO INTERFERES WITH THIS SCRAP!"

Dukes Has an Old Time Slugging Match With Trimmings.

Dukes, just over the line in Hancock county, is not a very big town, but it's a hot hang for the boys. Saturday night, when Christmas eve, is one that will be long remembered there for on that night occurred a fight that was a vivid reminder of the slugging matches so numerous in this section a half century ago.

Eldred Powers and Dave Loom, two powerfully built young men, who are as glib as they can be, had some little difference in opinion as to the quality of whiskey they had been drinking.

Both were egotistic enough to think they were the best judges of liquor in Kentucky and as there was no law to settle the difficulty outside the arbitrament of arms, they shed their coats and went after each other in a way that would have warmed the cockles of the hearts of our ancient and respected ancestors.

They used their fists, their knives and teeth and all other weapons they had access to. None was able to deliver five minutes; otherwise it was of two hours duration, but the most credible witnesses say it all happened in a space of thirty minutes.

It is certain that the fight would have been much more brief had the peace-makers in the crowd been allowed to interfere, but it is alleged that a young man named Luster arrested to himself the duties of master of ceremonies and pulling out his pistol he yelled "I'll shoot the first man who interferes with this scrap."

Luster's proclamation carried more respect with it than a manifesto from Agassiz and no one interfered. The combatants ceased from pure exhaustion and loss of blood.

The following is a list of casualties: Mr. Powers, of Dukes, Ky., two stabs wound inflicted with a knife.

Mr. Powers, of Dukes, Ky., fingers badly bitten by teeth of his opponent.

Mr. Loom, of Dukes, Ky., badly disfigured about the face and eyes by the teeth of his antagonist.

Peace has settled over Dukes and once more the sun shines bright over our old Kentucky home.

TELEPHONE TALK.

Ohio County Companies Have Consolidated.

The Ohio County Telephone company has arranged for the Fordville to the Sulphur Springs, and is pushing right on to Hartford and Beaver Dam, and by January 15 will have its line up to the two latter named places and the latter moment in Fordville will then have two lines into the county seat, which will ensure cheap toll rates, as the local company will begin business on this line at a fifteen cent rate, while the rate of the Cumberland company is twenty-five cents.

The Ohio County Telephone company and the Fordville Telephone company have consolidated, and have decided to build a line from Fordville to Owensboro direct, by way of Whitesville, Danford and Philpot, connecting with the Harrison exchange at Owensboro, which will be a metallic circuit line, and one of great importance to Owensboro, will carry the business of twenty-five toll stations.

A local exchange will be established at Fordville, with J. D. Cooper as manager, the material being on the ground for the work.

A Wise Bird.

A magnificent specimen of horned owl was shipped by the West Branch Monday to Evansville, Ill., where it will be used as a New Year's attraction in the show windows of Wilkinson Bros. store. This, which is a wise thing, for it will doubtless wonder over the late that compels it to hoot moans in Chicago, far away from the hills and hollows of old Kentucky.

VERY SUCCESSFUL

Brookbridge Boy Becomes a Successful Educator.

Prof. J. M. Pyle, of Wayne, Neb., is visiting his mother in the Bates neighborhood. Mr. Pyle is an instructor in his native county. When he went to Wayne a few years since he had but little money and the citizens of Wayne erected suitable college buildings for his normal school. They proposed to give him the buildings and grounds he secured 200 boarding pupils for the school. He did so and now the property belongs to him. The Wayne Normal School now has 350 pupils and is now one of the most prosperous educational institutions in the west.

OFFICER KILLED.

By a Tough Character in Hartford.

Sam Casheer Falls a Victim to the Deadly Knife of Chas. King.

Hartford, the county seat of Ohio, was thrown into an intense degree of excitement Saturday afternoon by the murder of Sam Casheer, a well known citizen, by the knife of Chas. King, a notorious character. The victim of the knife was a man named Wright, who was drunk and disorderly. King interfered at the same time drawing a large knife. The officer then told King to confine himself under arrest, and made an effort to catch King by the arm, but missed him and was caught in the shoulder. King then plunged the knife in Casheer's breast, and three times he thrust the blade into the victim's body. Before falling Casheer drew his revolver and fired two shots at King, but both went wide of the mark aimed at. Chas. King ran to Casheer's assistance, and received a cut on the thigh about six inches long and deep to the bone. Casheer lived only a few minutes after the attack and put him in jail. Excitement ran high and it was clear to be seen that as soon as dark came on a mob would take King out of the jail and lynch him, but the sheriff and jailer of Ohio county took him and went to Beaver Dam, where they took a train for Louisville, and there he was put in jail over to the jailer of Jefferson county for safe keeping.

Casheer was about thirty years of age, and was a popular and highly respected citizen. King is a tough and is reported from Hartford are true. Ohio county will certainly have another hanging, legal or otherwise, and the chief actor of the occasion will be Charles King, the man-slayer of Sam Casheer.

During the excitement incident to the killing of Casheer, Wright escaped, but a reward was offered to go into the hands of the man who would capture him. It is believed that Wright created the trouble as an accomplice of King.

HAND CRUSHED.

A Brakeman Meets With a Painful Accident.

Joe Downard, a well-known brakeman, who lives at New South with a painful accident in this city Saturday afternoon while making a coupling his hand was caught between the draw-heads and was crushed. It may be necessary to amputate the member.

THINK IT APPROPRIATE.

Dr. A. A. Simons prides himself on his keen appreciation of the finer things in life. His best friend, John Vest, is apparently growing younger as the years roll by. The doctor, thinking that John has discovered the fountain of youth, has used his wisdom so freely as to have the coming of his second childhood, and a rathe-box as a Christmas present, thinking it the fittest gift he could make under the circumstances.

FOR KIDNEY TROUBLE.

There is nothing better than Foley's Kidney Cure, everyone who tries it will agree to this—A. R. Fisher, Cloverport; R. A. Shelham, Stephentown; R. A. Witt, Harbington.

Grippe is Epidemic.

La Grippe is epidemic in this city. It is as much prevalent here as it is in large cities. Quite a number of people are suffering with it. Among those who are confined to their homes are J. D. Bahage, of the News, Mrs. E. L. Kinsman and child, and Mrs. Charles Bahage and child. All are now recovering.

Death of Mrs. Horace Root.

Mrs. Horace Root, a most estimable lady, died at 10 o'clock Saturday at her home at Morgantown, Ill. She was 84 years of age, and a sister of George H. Gregory, who lives at the old family grange yard at Tolopos.

Happy Children.

The children at all the Sunday schools were happily remembered Sunday by being given gifts of candy, fruits and nuts. Special assistance helped to make the services unusually interesting.

PLUGGED HIS MAN.

City Marshal Shoots a Bad Man From Forks of Rough.

Saw Mill Hand Tries to Take the Old Town of Clover.

Succeeded in Making the Devil Get a Move on Himself.

Cloverport had a taste of the wild west about 30 o'clock Friday evening. A. W. Galloway, a new mill hand, who has been at work down the river, determined to give the old town a hot time and was very successful, although the old town residents felt familiarly and gave him a dose of his own medicine.

Galloway, before he started in on his assault, filled himself with mean whiskey. He then went to Charles Lister's meat market, and, pulling out a handful of cartridges and a pistol he said:

"How would you like a dose of these pills?"

Charles, who has been sick, and who has had some experience with physicians, did not like the course of treatment proffered and determined that if the man intended on administering the medicine, he had better administer him by performing a surgical operation. Acting on impulse, the brave butcher drew a cutting knife and cut the would be bad man out of the ship.

Galloway whooped and yelled as he drew Indians do, when they are full of fire water, and Price Graham, the city marshal, decided he was indulging in too much levity for so dignified and solemn a town as Cloverport.

He started after Galloway and the latter got a Proctor Knott move on himself and it out over the hill, hitting the ground in high places.

Clyde Morrison, the printer's devil in the News office, happened to be just behind the fleeing man and Clyde was hustling home to get supper early so he had to attend to some social duties in Cleveland that evening.

The fleeing man thought Clyde was the marshal and he fired several shots at him. Clyde got a move on himself in the other direction and only hurt and the wind felt the first time in the history of Cloverport where any other agency than a big rival meeting had got the devil on the run.

The city marshal in the meantime arrived on the scene and Galloway sniped his pistol twice at Mr. Graham. The marshal, who is patient and long-suffering, did not dare to chance the fellow's second attempt and to save his own life he shot at Galloway.

The ball hit Galloway on the side of the skull but as the latter was as hard as steel it plowed along outside the bone and made an ugly cut to the ear.

The wound is several inches long. The stick of being hit by the bullet knocked the man down but he was up in a few minutes and it required the united efforts of the marshal and a posse of four men to escort the prisoner to the jail. He seemed to be possessed of the spirit and strength of a demon.

He was guarded that night and on Saturday morning was brought to the police jail. Judge Skilman to be tried on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. He begged a continuance, as his physical condition was such that he could not stand trial. His request was granted and the case was continued until 2 o'clock Monday afternoon. His bond was placed at $250 in default of which he would be taken to jail.

On Monday, Judge Skilman, in justice to the prisoner, who was mentally and physically unfit for trial, continued the case until Tuesday. His bond was fixed at $100 in order to give the prisoner a chance to bail him out and give him surgical and medical treatment at this point.

From appear however, it was to let the prisoner go.

The prisoner, seemed a very desperate man. He is said to live near the Forks of Rough and his brother is said to have killed a man.

Rev. T. V. Joiner visited Galloway while he was in jail and ministered to his comfort as best he could. Galloway told the minister that he was filled with remorse and that if he got out of this trouble he would be a better man in future.

Disregarding With a Seal.

The "Henderson Route" is one of the whitest corporations in the country. It is good to the employees. It knew that the boys wanted Christmas money and it sent the "Katy" with Paymaster Bush and Mr. Lammington's bills in advance of payday. The road played Santa Claus. It is these acts of kindness and thoughtfulness that convince the people that the L. & H. S. R. road is a corporation with a soul.

Keenest Seesides.

Warren Bristol, of Glendora, had a hilarious episode from death in a week. While he was sitting a tree a limb broke on his head with such force as to render him insensible. He was lucky to escape alive.

Christmas Gift.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tinsley received the richest kind of a gift Christmas morning. It was a beautiful boy that weighed ten pounds. "Mother, father and son are the happiest folks alive."

BRISK TRADE.

Christmas Business Eclipses All Former Records.

Holiday business all over the county broke all former records. The people spent money more freely than ever before. Irvington, Glendane and Harbington were filled with shoppers and the merchants, especially those who advertised, did land-office business.

In Cloverport, on Saturday, the holiday throng made our streets look like the thoroughfares of a great city.

The merchants all say that their Christmas business far exceeded the previous year. The crowds were such that the corps of clerks were scarcely large enough to serve them.

John Vest said: "It would surprise you to know the change that has taken place in holiday buying. People who are out to buy gifts are purchasing common sense articles that are really useful and are appreciated. It is a healthy indication."

Fully 1,000 out-of-town people were on the streets of the city Saturday.

IT'S NIP AND TUCK

Between the Hustling Little Towns of Glendane and Irvington.

Trying to Head Each Other Off in the Big Ear Contest.

Says the Glendane correspondent to the News:

Last week in a moment of exaltation I attempted grandiloquence in describing what I thought was the capital ear of the county. Found little Irvington—justly proud, too—scattered my enthusiasm and flattered my ego. This time I say nothing; simply record Luster's words as he spoke them to me Saturday. He says: "There is a great deal being said about big ears just now; but I'm telling a fact when I tell you that we were shaking corn at Henry Overton's the other day when one of the boys found an ear with 30 rows and fifty-two grains to the row, making 1560 grains, forty-eight ahead of Senator Jolly's. Anything can be seen at Mr. Overton's. You tell them next week that I, the time, feel big ear corn to my cows than the News has been bragging about."

The crowd laughed and the crowd laughed at the corn feeling part and Mr. Ashley didn't insist on their believing it, but he assures me that Mr. Overton has 1300 pointed ears for any one's inspection. Wonder if Irvington gathered any cherries Christmas, found any blue birds' nests, or has planted next year's garden yet?

Card of Thanks.

We were pleasantly surprised on last Thursday evening, by a large party of friends coming in and taking charge of the paragon and severely punishing us, but nobody was hurt. The evening was spent in a pleasant social way, lunch was served and the evening closed by their baskets and Uncle Alex's delivery wagon, which had been pressed into service, were all unloaded and filled our land with good things, besides giving and money, after which was conducted religious services and the friends departed, leaving us in a good humor. We highly appreciate their tokens of kindness. May God bless them all.

Also we return thanks to our friends at Holt's chapel for a nice donation on Thanksgiving day and wish them God's benedictions.

FARMER'S INSTITUTE.

Big Preparations Being Made For the Event.

The Program is a Very Interesting and Entertaining One.

IRVINGTON, KY., Dec. 26, 1898.—Editor BRUCKENRIDGE NEWS.—We farmers are looking with great interest to Jan. 3 and 4, 1899. As Bruckenkridge county is to be one of the few counties in Kentucky to be honored with a State Farmer's Institute during 1899. This meeting will be all that the name implies, a farmer's meeting and as some of the very best farmers in Kentucky live right here in Bruckenkridge and Meade county, we look for a very interesting meeting.

Hon. Lucius Moore, Commissioner of Agriculture, will be here with eight or nine of the best speakers that our state affords. We are going to try to give these gentlemen the best reception they will get in western Kentucky. Now, brother farmers the committee on table arrangements are preparing to have dinner on Sunday morning and stay all day. So come out and bring your baskets well filled.

As a soldier he ain't no gold-laced Belvidere
Ter sparkle in the sun;
He don't parade with gey cockade,
Nor posies in his gun.

He ain't no pretty soldier boy, so lovely, spick and span,
He wears a coat of dusty tan,
The marchin', paracin', pipe-clay starchin'
Reg'lar army man.

He ain't at home in Sunday School,
Nor yet at social tea,
And on the day he gets his pay
He's apt to spend it free.

He ain't no temperance advocate,
He likes to rush can;
He's kind'er tough, an' maybe rough,
The rearin', tearin', sometimes swearin'
Reg'lar army man.

No State'll call him noble son,
But let a row start anyhow,
They'll send for him, you bet,
He don't get any ice at all in fusion's social plan.

He gets the job to face a mob,

The millin', drillin', made for killin'

When he goes off to war,
He gets no speech, nor prayerful preach
From Mayor or Governor.

He packs his little knapsack up and trots off in the van,
To start the fight, and start it right,
The reg'lar army man,
The rattlin', battlin', Colt or Gatlin'
Reg'lar army man.

He makes no fuss about the job,
He don't talk big or brave,
He knows he's in the fight to win
Or help fill up a grave.

He ain't no mamma's darlin', but he does the best he can,
An' he's the chap that wins the scrap,

The dandy, handy, cool and sandy

BLACK DIAMONDS

Are very scarce but every Lump of

Baskett Coal

Is a Jewel.

That is the verdict of all housekeepers who use BASKETT COAL as a fuel. Its good points are numerous.

IT'S AN ECONOMICAL COAL

For the reason that it gives more heat for the money than any other coal on the market. It makes a steady, lasting fire. Fill your stove or grate with it at night, close your doors and you've got a fire that lasts until morning. You do not have to use as much BASKETT COAL as you do others, because it has more substance and weight to it than the fast burning coal.

IT'S A CLEAN COAL

The BASKETT COAL is clean. All good bituminous coal produces clinkers, so does the BASKETT, but it makes less clinkers and less ashes than most other varieties, and is, therefore an ideal grate or stove fuel.

BASKETT COAL

Is a superb fuel for use in flouring mills, tobacco factories, saw mills and manufacturing plants.

Farm Notes.

American fertilizers were shipped about last year to the value of $1,400,000 compared with $1,250,000 in 1917.

Timothy hay, taking prices into consideration, is one of the most unprofitable rough feeds for fattening cattle.

The National debt has been decreased from $20,000,000,000 to $18,000,000,000 since the war, to $13,000,000,000 in 1917.

Perfumum silene keeps well but owing to the woody stems which it usually contains it is not relished by stock and is often found unprofitable.

Hogs fattened upon corn usually make pork superior to that produced by any other feeds. Some buyers discriminate against hogs fed upon soil feeds. In a very few cases better prices are received for hogs given muscle forming feeds.

Manure reduces the loss of nitrogen. In an ordinary uncovered manure heap, the loss of nitrogen during the first six days in a German test was 37 per cent. in a covered heap it was a little less. The addition of 30 per cent of manure to the straw reduced the loss of nitrogen more than 60 per cent.

Best production of fertilizer—It has been demonstrated in Georgia that the application of 400 pounds of good phosphate, 24 of muriate of potash and 200 of cottonseed meal per acre gave better financial results than any other proportion. Drilling the fertilizer was more profitable than applying broadcast.

One way to kill grass late plow the ground in the fall, turning up the furrows as high as possible and set them in the rough mud spring, then harrow and sow buckwheat. When this is in bloom, plow under and sow again, and plow under the last thing in the season. The following year the ground will be free from grass and ready for any crop desired to put on.

All such should know that Dr. King's New Life Pills, the wonderful Stomach and Liver Remedy, gives a splendid appetite, sound digestion and regular bowels. It habit that insures perfect health and great energy. Only 25c. at Short & Haynes' drug store.

For Keeping Fowls Free From Lice.

I have never had occasion to use any of the ordinary applications. The bottom or floor of my poultry house is made of cement upon which was originally placed about an inch of sawdust. The droppings were allowed to remain and accumulate and from time to time the surplus above an inch or two in depth was removed, but for some 20 years was never until this spring completely cleaned out. The constant scratching of the fowls has kept the floor covered from two to four inches deep with a very dry, dusty and fine layer in which the fowls delight to dust themselves all weather.

As a result I scarcely ever have a lice on any kind, and if a house fly is introduced from abroad it is very soon relieved from the vermin. The house opens into my boiler house and a regular body of moderate temperature during the winter and the fowls can be seen dusting themselves nearly every day at all seasons. No other or other material has been added from the beginning until this season, when the floor was entirely new for the first time in many years and dust again used as a starter.—[Dr. James Emerson.]

by local applications, since they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed it causes a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; since cases out of ten are cured by cathartics, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular, free.

Wins Laurie as a Civil Engineer.

Deputy Clerk Clark Chesnut, of Owensboro, received a letter this morning from his brother, Mr. Alfred A. Stuart, who lives in Brooklyn, N. Y. Mr. Stuart is an old Owensboro boy and is recognized as one of the most prominent civil engineers in the country. He has just completed a very large bridge in which was the deepest pneumatic work that he has ever undertaken. The bridge was 108 feet below the water level with a caisson, the dimensions of the caisson being 63 by 79 feet and 53 feet high, carrying weight the extent of 20,000 tons. When finished sinking two hundred and fifty men were required to man the work below the water, and a most singular thing, while at work at the caisson in the construction of large bridges, no man was killed or otherwise injured.

Mr. Stuart has also under construction on the anchorage for the same bridge a large amount of stone work in which he has over 45,000 yards of cut stone masonry to lay. It will require about a hundred men to do this, including a large force that is at work at the quarry about two hundred miles up the state. When this is finished it will be one of the largest pieces of bridge masonry in existence.—Owensboro Inquirer.

THE BRECKENRIDGE NEWS.

JNO. D. AND V. G. BABBAOE, Editors and Proprietors.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 28, 1898.

EIGHT PAGES.

A TALK WITH SUBSCRIBERS

The passing of the old year makes it natural to review the progress or failures we have made during the past twelve months. The editor of the News, in common with all mankind, feels the desire to take his friends, the readers of his paper, into his confidence and talk shop with them.

We feel very much satisfied with the year 1898. It has been a good year to us, notwithstanding the fact that it brought its crosses and its vexations of spirit. The News has continued to grow in favor, and it has merited the honor of being called the best county paper in Kentucky, which practically means the best county paper in the country. We feel that our efforts to provide a good paper for our readers have been appreciated, as all our old subscribers have stayed by us and new ones have been added to our list.

The News is now an excellent paper, but from this on it will keep growing handsomer in appearance, and newsworthy and more entertaining in its reading.

The paper will continue to draw the line and will exclude from its columns all that is not fit to print. It will be independent in its politics, and will endeavor to be fair and unbiased in its utterances. It will discuss all public questions from the highest and most patriotic standpoint that its editor's abilities will allow. In the discussion of questions of local policy and expediency it will align itself always on the side of the public good.

This is a great era. It is an era of expansion. People's minds and ideas must expand. The days of contraction, of narrowness and bigotry are passed. We live in the broadest age, in the largest times that the world has known outside the era of Christ. His word and works are just finding their best fruition, and it behooves us all to adapt ourselves to the new conditions that have arisen.

Let us all work in harmony. Let us be more kindly in our dealings with each other. Let us forget differences of the past, and let our treatment of each other in the future make amends for the wrongs of the past.

Let us start the new year with our hearts rejoicing at the prosperous outlook. Let us start resolved to do the best we can to promote the best interests of ourselves and our neighbors.

The merchants have discovered the splendid value of the News as an advertising medium, and have used its columns liberally. They have reaped rich rewards, and we look for them to continue their progressive and up-to-date advertising.

The readers of a paper make the paper. It is just what they want it to be. If the News is the best paper of its class in the country, then it is logical that its readers are the best people of their class in the country. Their class, by the way, is first class. Those who are not now on our subscription list should hasten to get on, for every paper they miss reading from now on will be a gem they have failed to acquire.

Get in the News band wagon. It will be pleasant, entertaining and instructive riding. You will get to know your town, your county, your country, and the world, better than you ever knew it before. The round trip only costs a dollar.

Industry and Integrity.

An extract from President McKinley's Speech at Tuskegee, Ala., Dec. 16th.

Integrity and industry are the best possessions which any Man can have, and every Man can have them. Nobody can give them to him or take them from him. He can not acquire them by inheritance; he can not buy them or beg them or borrow them. They belong to the individual, and are his unquestioned property. He alone can part with them. They are his to keep. They make happy homes. They achieve success in every walk in life; they have won the greatest triumphs for Mankind. No Man who has them ever gets into the police court, or before the grand jury, or in the work house or the chain gang. They give one Moral and Material Power. They will bring you a comfortable living, make you respect yourself and command the respect of your fellows. They are indispensable to success. They are invincible. The Merchant requires the clerk whom he employs to have them. The railroad corporation inquires whether the man seeking employment possesses them. Every avenue of human endeavor welcomes them. They are the only keys to open the door of opportunity to a struggling Manhood. Employment waits on them; capital requires them; citizenship is not good without them. If you do not already have them, get them.

seeing, dragged him back into their room the weeping children could hear their parents' voices—one full of tears, the other of anger, so changed that they could hardly recognize them.

The blacksmith stood still a moment and looked at his wife.

"Ah, it was you, was it, that made him return? Very well. He may go to bed. I shall see what I will do in the morning."

The next day Christiana awoke after sleep full of nightmare and terror to find himself in the room where he had slept when a child. Across the little bed framed panes grew a hop vine in flower, and the sun was already high in the heavens. Below the hammer sounded on the anvil.

His mother was at his bedside. She had not left him during the night, because she feared her husband's rage might return. Her husband also had not sought his couch, for until it was dawn he had walked about the house weeping, sighing, opening and shutting the drawers of the press, and now that it was day had quietly entered his son's room, dressed as for a journey, with high galathea, a large hat and carrying as true farmed mountaineer's staff. He came up to the bed, saying only, "Get up!"

The boy, a little confused, started to get on his hands and knees.

"Not that," said his father sternly. "But he has no others," his mother interposed.

"Give him mine, then. I shall not need them any more."

While his son was dressing, Lory carefully folded the uniform, and, making a pocket of it, hung it by its strap over the end of his stick.

"Now come down stairs," he said at last, and the three went down to the forge without speaking. The helms were cold, the men were at work. The sight of the forge and the sound of the anvil, how he had played there so long between the warm road and the dark where the sparks of the forge shone in the black coal dust. A feeling of tenderness came over him. A desire to have his father's pardon, but when he lifted his eyes he encountered an inexorable glance. At last the blacksmith spoke:

"My son," said he, "here are the anvil and the tongs; all are yours. And all this too," added he, pointing to the little garden, full of the sunlight, and the humming of bees, framed in the be-smoked doorway. "The hives, the vines, the house, all belong to you. As you have sacrificed your honor for these things it is only right that you should take of them. You are master over all here. As for me, I am going away. You owe five years to France, and I am going to pay them for you."

"Lory, Lory, where are you going?" cried his poor wife.

"I must," wept his son.
